SPEAKER

Cindy Gilbreth, Quilts of Honor

When some people think of quilters, they get this visual image of a little old lady with nothing but time on her hands. Cindy Gilbreth shatters this stereotype. The passionate grandmother makes a person tired just listening to her schedule. She's on a mission and she will tell you its God given.

Cindy retired from Pantex after 30 years as a weapons tech, And even while she was still working at Pantex and running her household she still kept making Honor Quilts.

In November of 2017 other ladies found out about Cindy's mission and the sewing group Texas Panhandle Quilts of Honor was formed. The women share their vision to cover every veteran they could with a Quilt of Honor. As of August 2023, Quilts of Honor has donated well over 600 quilts. The nonprofit group supplies all the fabric, batting and quilting themselves but they are happy to accept donations to help continue their mission.

Cindy is a passionate and energetic lady that continues to reinvent the image of the modern quilter and us forging a trail to reignite the patriotism and respect for veterans across the panhandle.
